FRIDAY, SEPT. 12, 1913

There was no extending the glad hand on the part of candidates at the fair this week, and the entertainment was missed, but the boys will be around next fall all right. And they'll be made to feel at home.

Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York died Wednesday morning aboard the steamer Baltic as the vessel neared the other side of the Atlantic. He had taken the ocean voyage in the hope of benefiting his health. His remains will be brought back to New York as soon as possible for burial.

Some republican prints are greatly disturbed because of the possibility of men of their political faith being pried loose from official jobs they have long held. It is just dreadful to think of democrats aspiring to places republicans think they should be given life tenure.

It is now quite certain that there will be four tickets in the field in this congressional district, the new nineteenth, next fall—democratic, republican, progressive and socialist. It would seem that the democratic candidate would have pretty easy sailing. In an older day a republican would have had a cinch. But it is different now.

As the democratic candidate for congress in this district attorney Thomas McNamara of Youngstown would not only have the full support of his own party but would make inroads on the candidates of other parties and make his election certain. At any rate, that is the opinion of a host of friends who are urging him to announce his candidacy for the office.

Political enemies of Congressman J. J. Whitacre of Canton in the first district composed of Stark, Holmes, Tuscarawas and Wayne counties are plotting to compass his defeat for re-nomination by seeking to get other men to enter the race. But the fighting congressman is not frightened by the snarls of disgruntled gentlemen who could not dictate to him in the matter of appointments. His record in congress has pleased the people and if he cares to serve further in the House it is safe to presume that he will be returned despite the protests of a handful of politicians who would retire him to private life.

Gov. James M. Cox has done more for the good of the people of his state during the time he has been governor than all his predecessors for a score of years. Other governors went into office and drifted along fearfully to attempt much lest they antagonize some alienated Governor Cox saw many evils and many needs. He started in to eradicate the evils and supply the needs. Results, so far as they related to his political popularity, were not considered. Mr. Cox has carried the fight against certain wrongs directly to the people. He is not back in a closet dicker with politicians of those who want special privileges. He is out talking face to face with the people telling them what he is doing and proposing to do, denouncing the referendum frauds, the school book trusts, the insurance robberies, reckless extravagances, etc. The world is looking for men who do things and have courage. Governor Cox is surely in line of promotion to greater things.—Lisbon Patriot.

SALEM

Nothing has so stirred this city in years as the murder and suicide of Ida Lee and Oscar Gray.

This city is threatened with a milk famine. Restaurant keepers and even private consumers are finding it difficult to secure what is needed to supply their wants on account of the supply being little more than one-fourth what it was a year ago.

Schools opened Monday but there was little doing on account of the intense excitement caused by the finding of murdered Ida Lee and suicide Oscar Gray.

Lewis Ritchey has sold his poultry farm south of the city to David De Rhodes.

The new city hospital will be dedicated Saturday afternoon with imposing ceremonies.

There is a lively fight on for members of the board of education. Four of the old members seek re-election and eight others have filed petitions so that there will be 12 candidates to select from next November.

W. D. Turner, formerly of this city, who recently completed two terms as county recorder, is now located in Cleveland where he is engaged in the wall paper business.

From Congressman Whitacre.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Although Representative J. J. Whitacre has been active in his opposition to large public building and ground appropriations, he obtained an Ohio item of $20,000 for an extension of the Canton postoffice.

The above is from a Washington dispatch in the Plain Dealer. The $20,000 was secured for the Canton postoffice for the reason that that amount is required for necessary additional room. Following common custom I might have secured an authorization for a new $400,000 building. My simple mind, however, followed common, ordinary sense, and the $20,000 is the result. Therein is a difference. Your correspondent does not appear to see it, however.

Are You Boys Ready for School? You can fit them out at Wiesner's with a good serviceable suit, bloomer trousers, good strong stockings, caps, underwear, waists, etc., at lowest prices.

A large per cent of houses are empty or marked "for rent," both here and in Leetonia. Real estate had a tedious boom when the million dollar steel plant excitement was at its height.

An apple grover in Carroll county will have 500 bushels, and only one-half of the orchard is bearing. The frost line is distinct; fruit being killed on the low part and fruit abundant on the high part of the orchard.

A house is on foot in the state printer's office at Columbus to print school books for the common schools of Ohio. Every head of a family should stand up and sing the long meter doxology. One of the articles entering into the "high cost of living" in Washingtonville is to provide a large family with school books.

When Columbiana county was in the dry column, $2,000 was asked for the Ballantine property, and it was sold the other day for $800, seeing that there can be only two saloons here when Columbiana county goes dry one year hence. Houses are not scarce in this village at present, and it will require a business cyclone to fill the "empties."

A couple of Peeping Toms got onto a back porch roof on West Main street about bed time Monday night to see how the ladies appear when viewed through lace curtains. But unfortunately for the "movie" they were mistaken for kidnappers and were shot at. They succeeded in making their escape by jumping off the roof at some risk to their pedal extremities. They say that "boys will be boys."

The Washingtonville schools always adjourn for one day of the Canfield fair. This year they took Friday, when only 5 tickets were sold at this station on account of rain. For the coming two weeks look out for the balloons, listen to the squawks and keep your eye upon the little whips. This fair is always a success, because it is rightly managed, is in a good location and the people are satisfied.

MANY DIVORCES IN BUCKEYE DOMAIN

One Marriage Out of Every Seven Is a Failure.

D. A. DONOVAN,

Special Columbus Correspondent.

Columbus, Sept. 11.—One marriage out of every seven in Ohio is a failure. This is indicated by statistics filed with the secretary of state by county officials. The exact figures cannot be given because of the failure of Cuyahoga county to report. Returns have been received from every other county. The total number of divorces granted during the year ending June 30, 1913, in all counties except Cuyahoga were 5,112, and it is estimated that the number in that county will add from 1,200 to 1,300 to the number. There were approximately 47,000 marriages during the year. Divorce is on the increase in the state. In the preceding year there were 5,695 divorces, some 600 fewer than in the year just ended. When the year just closed began there were 5,427 divorces, suits pending, and when it closed the number had increased to 5,575. The percentage of divorces is larger in the more populous counties.

Up to Attorney General.

The new liquor license law says that no person who has not been a resident of the state a year can get a license, and the question has been raised as to whether this also applies to corporations which may wish to take out saloon licenses. The state licensing board has referred the question to Attorney General Hogan, and it is expected he will rule that no foreign corporation can take out a license, and that no corporation incorporated under the laws of Ohio which has not been doing business for a period of one year is eligible for a license. He inclines to the belief that the restriction placed upon the individual applies with equal force to a corporation.

To hold to the contrary would mean that citizens of doubtful character could form a corporation and by selecting a man of good reputation as manager could get a license.

School Work Injures Boy?

A Jefferson county school superintendent wrote to Frank Miller, state superintendent of instruction, asking if a boy under 16 who had not completed the sixth grade could leave school and go to work in the mines. He said that school work was detrimental to the lad's health, and he wanted to know if by "exercise of discretionary leniency" on the part of himself and the mine superintendent the boy could be permitted to work in the mines. The law provides that no boy under 16 who has not had education up to the sixth grade may work. It struck the officials in the state department as rather amusing that a boy whose health could not withstand school work should be regarded as physically able to do work in the mines. He must procure a sixth grade certificate before he may work.

Question Won't Down.

The pesky finger bowl question won't down. It's getting the social set hereabout real agitated. One of the hotel men in Columbus started it only to exploit the merits of a movement to abolish the after dinner ablution as unrefined and inelegant, and so the argument started. Society is now arraying itself on one side or the other. Other hotel men are coming to the defense of the finger washing after meals and a riot of argument and discussion is the result. The controversy outside of Ohio is getting to be one between the eastern hotel men and the western hotel men. The western people are against the finger bowl on the ground that one's ablutions are best performed in private, and that after all the daintiest finger bowl imaginable is nothing but a relic of the old wash pan of pioneer days. But the eastern hoteliers are arising in arms against the attack upon a tradition to them so sacred. "The last word in polite service," is their characterization. The keenness of the argument in Ohio is attracting attention in other parts of the country and hotel publications are making much of it.

Says Act Would Save Money.

If it should happen that the Warnes law would be subjected to a referendum vote this fall and defeated by the people, every community in Ohio would have to get ready for another quadrennial reappraisal of real estate this winter. The facts are that it is the Warnes law alone that stands in the way of the four-year reappraisal. And of course the chances are that it will continue so to stand, since every indication is that the secretary of state will reject the referendum petitions. But as a general precaution practically every municipality in the state is endeavoring to elect this fall the quadrennial appraisers, or assessors of real estate, as they are known in order to anticipate any possibility of the Warnes law being beaten. Incidentally, the administration forces, who are against the referendum movement, argue that the state will save a vast sum by abandoning the four-year reappraisal. Four years ago that reappraisal cost nearly $2,000,000.

Mother of Eighteen Children.

"I am the mother of eighteen children and have the praise of doing more work than any young woman in my town," writes Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va. "I suffered for five years with stomach trouble and could not eat as much as a biscuit without suffering. I have taken three bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets and am now a well woman and weigh 168 pounds. I can eat anything I want to, and as much as I want and feel better than I have at any time in ten years. I refer to any one in Boone Mill or vicinity and they will vouch for what I say." Chamberlain's Tablets are for sale by all dealers.—Adv.

IT IS AN OLD SAYING THAT

DILIGENCE IS THE MOTHER OF GOOD LUCK, AND DILIGENCE IS ONLY ANOTHER NAME FOR HARD WORK. EFFORT IS SOON FORGOTTEN IF THE RESULT IS WORTH WHILE, AND THE EFFORTS MADE TO INCREASE ONE'S SAVINGS ACCOUNT ARE SURE TO BRING A GOLDEN HARVEST.
